

Report on the Interaction of Honourable President with Newly Enrolled PhD Students

A special interaction session with the Honourable President and the newly enrolled PhD students of the academic year 2023-2024 was organised on November 1, 2023. The session aimed to welcome the new cohort, understand their aspirations, and provide guidance on their academic journey ahead.

The Honourable President began the interaction with a heartfelt welcome, highlighting the university's pride in attracting such a diverse and talented group of researchers. He emphasized the university's commitment to nurturing their academic endeavours and ensuring that they have all the necessary resources to achieve their research objectives. Referring to the university's rich history of research and innovation, he inspired the students to aim high and contribute significantly to their respective fields. One of the notable moments of the session was when the Honourable President shared personal anecdotes from his own PhD journey.

The Honourable President also underscored the importance of interdisciplinary collaboration, urging the new scholars to venture beyond their specific research silos.

Towards the end of the session, the floor was opened for questions. Numerous students seized this opportunity to seek guidance on topics ranging from research strategies to achieving a work-life balance during their PhD. The Honourable President addressed each query thoughtfully, ensuring that the students left with their concerns alleviated.

As a gesture of warmth and to further foster the spirit of camaraderie, all attendees were cordially invited to a high tea following the formal session.
